Federal Procurement Law

Decades of Experience with a Specific Focus on Federal Procurement on an International Scale

Contracting with the Federal Government is unique, and our firm brings extensive experience to this specialized practice area. We represent any company that contracts with the federal government throughout the country and at every level of the federal contracting process.

Our Attorneys

Senior Partner Paul Sanderford brings over 30 years of experience with Federal Procurement. He has focused on this practice area for his entire career and he routinely represents all types of contractors in a variety of government contracting issues related to Projects throughout the country (and even internationally). Shaina Swanson also provides a unique proficiency to this practice area, which is consistent with her background as an officer in the United States Army.
